Baker Defines Attitude on Highway

The following letter from C. C. Baker, a candidate for State Senator, is self-explanatory:

Salinas, Calif., July 21, 1924.

Mr. Wm. Overstreet,
Publisher of Carmel Pine Cone.

Dear Mr. Overstreet: It is with pleasure and without hesitation that I respond to your request of recent date to the effect that I provide you with a statement, in brief, as to my position in respect to what is commonly referred to as "The Coast Highway," by submitting the following:

There is no question but that this highway is designed to be one of the greatest and most wonderful roads in the land. It will not only be a most scenic route for motor travel, but will have a high commercial value as well, and it will operate, above all things else, towards the development of the Monterey Peninsula and the lands along the coast line to San Luis Obispo.

It has been both my privilege and my pleasure to devote my efforts, jointly with others, for the speedy promotion of this project during the last few years. As a member of the State Assembly since 1922, I have had frequent occasion to appear before different groups, as well as before the State Highway Commission, the Advisory Board to the Highway Commission, and other organizations, to present the merits of the Coast Highway and to argue and appeal for such support as to effect the completion thereof at the earliest possible date. And as I feel that I am not without influence with the forces or agencies to which we must look for the ways and means of pushing forward this enterprise, I wish to be listed as one of the active and somewhat effective factors in furthering the interests of this road, and assure you that it will be the beneficiary of my utmost endeavors in its behalf.

Very truly yours,

C. C. BAKER.

Over-Seas Women Delegate Here

Miss Imogen Crane has returned from the national convention of the Women's Over-Seas League, recently held in San Francisco, which she attended as a delegate of the New York Unit, Over-Seas League, Inc.

Miss Crane was the first to volunteer for canteen service from her home in western New York, serving over a year in Is-sur-tille, Bordeaux and, finally, was in charge of the canteens of the southern zone with headquarters at Marseilles.

With her mother, Mrs. Alexis Crane, she is spending the summer in Carmel at the Kimball cottage.

The work of caring for disabled over-seas women which was brought forward at the 1923 convention has been carried on with great enthusiasm and is proving to be one of the greatest necessities for the existence of the league. Gifts for this most worthy cause will be gratefully received and forwarded by Miss Crane.

Dan Totheroh Here to Put on His Play

Dan Totheroh, the young San Francisco playwright, who has won several prizes for his work, is in Carmel to begin rehearsals for the production of his play, "The Princess Salome," which he wrote, with Ruth Chatterton in mind, and which that exquisite actress liked very much.

The play will be given in the Theatre of the Golden Bough.

Mrs. Ruth Kuster will play the principal role, Morris Ankrum will be John the Baptist, Lloyd Corrigan will play Herod, and Minetta Ellen, Herodias. Other players who will appear are E. C. Raffeto, Dorothea Wilson and Phyllis Blake and Edward G. Ruster.

The play will be given its premiere on August 15 and 16.

Strauss Concert is Enjoyed by Many

By Frank Arthur French

Lawrence Strauss, singer of songs, intrigued a critical audience last Saturday night at the Theatre of the Golden Bough into an intoxication of insistence at the close of his unusual recital. The word "intrigued" is carefully chosen since the usual demand is for arias from operas and oratorios, then a gradual lifting of emotions by ballads and folk songs. But his repertoire excludes opera, for he prefers to be a singer of songs. And this he certainly is, par excellence.

Commencing this evening with two songs by Paladilhe he gave first four French colorful moderns, then a glorious rendering of a German group, and after section one, intermission and coffee in the foyer, a long series of eight charming varied English numbers, running the gamut from the dramatic "Psalm 137" of Ernest Bloch to an old English humoresque. These he executed with fine acclaim and passion and most adequate tonal climaxes. These called for repeated encores, graciously accorded. Auf Flugeln des Gesanges by Mendelssohn was repeated throughout. Die Florelle (The Trout) by Schubert brought a rain of applause both for the singer and accompanist, Louis Horst; it was full of delicate word-painting, charming descriptive phrasing. The elusiveness of the trout was in every note; the bass accompaniment, particularly with oblique harmonies, telling the story. The musicianly playing of Mr. Horst throughout was equal to the masterly interpretation of the singer, and an invaluable support.

Lawrence Strauss possesses a voice almost disturbing in its rare quality—something velvet lined and beyond analysis. As a tenor he lacks the thin blue color of most tenors, the timbre of his organ being in rich rose tone with yellow lights dappling his chromatics and arpeggios, never failing in crisp, thrilling attack, flawless breathing and control and rare articulation. The acme of his artistry was in his cadences on high notes, usually an effort and agony to behold, but he cut them with gentle imperceptible surgery, with roundure of tone and finesse.

Mr. Strauss has shown by his national successes with the symphonies and his reception in New York that out of the West can come a singer of acclaim. Born in Oregon, he studied with Jean de Reszke in Paris, and in diction with Jules Algier. In England he coached in oratorio under Watson Mills and in Germany with Fritz Lindemann, for years accompanist to Lift Lehmann. He has sung with many modern composers and prefers to devote his program to them. Among his encores was "A Round-up Lullaby," by Gertrude Ross, which he sang with her a few years ago in Los Angeles at its premier appearance.

A very pretty compliment to him lies in the invitation of Ernest Bloch, the distinguished composer, to assist at his farewell recital in San Francisco. The two had never met, but Mr. Strauss had made the remarkable setting of "Psalm 137" notable in the West by his rendition of it for the first time with the Los Angeles Symphony organization.

Treat Recommended to Succeed Bardin

The resignation of Judge Joseph A. Bardin from the superior court bench of this county has brought out quite a flock of seekers after the position. Recommendations, solicited and unsolicited, have been sent to Governor F. W. Richardson at Sacramento, the bulk of them being for Attorney Fred A. Treat of Monterey, at present assistant county district attorney and city attorney of Monterey.

Gaskin Speaks to Art Lovers

By Susan Porter

Last Monday evening a large number of club members and their friends gathered at Arts and Crafts Hall to hear William G. Gaskin's promised talk on "Modern Masters and Their Works," and to look at his exceedingly interesting collection of reproductions of Cezanne, Gauguin, Picasso and other much-discussed artists.

Mr. Gaskin spoke with an earnestness and a devout conviction that appealed strongly to his audience, even to those who, for lack of technical understanding, were not able to follow him intelligently. He interested us laymen in his subject; we feel that he is able to make us recognize and understand these modern evaluations that so mystify us, though he has not yet done so. We strongly desire to hear him again, to pin him down with simple, even stupid, questions—and we feel very sure that he will be able to answer them and to satisfy us.

Prunella Made Her Bow Last Night

Last evening all paths led to the Forest Theatre, where Prunella made her first courtesy before local theatre-goers. This quaint little play with the deep under-note of real philosophy is admirably suited to our beautiful open-air setting. The cast is one of the best and most evenly balanced that has tripped the boards here for many moons. Marion Taylor did a beautiful piece of sympathetic acting in the difficult role of Prunella, and Ralph Geddis played Pierrot with a brilliance and in the deeper part a sincerity of feeling that was very convincing to his listeners. But then, we mustn't tell you all about it for if you were not in the audience last night you'll certainly be there tonight.

Good Night! No Grove-Carmel Road

The county board of supervisors, by a vote of three to two, Supervisors Roberts and Talbot in the minority, has turned down the proposed Pacific Grove Carmel direct road.

The majority of the board did not care to assume the responsibility and expense incident to establishing and maintaining a right of way.

A Carmelite in Sunny Italy

Florence, Italy,
June 22, 1924.

Dear Mr. Overstreet:

I have a faint recollection of a promise made before I left Carmel, to give an occasional account of our wanderings in Europe.

We have enjoyed Naples, with its beautiful surroundings; Rome and Florence to the limit, and expect to leave tomorrow morning for Venice.

Italy has been on her good behavior and has provided delightful weather—cool and pleasant, with an occasional shower to lay the dust.

This has made sight-seeing unusually interesting and comfortable.

Of course we are not ready to leave Florence tomorrow, but who would ever be ready to leave Florence? The only thing to do is simply to pack our suitcases and go, hoping to return some time and finish our visit.

After Venice and the lakes of northern Italy we will spend a week or two in Switzerland before proceeding to Paris.

I have not seen a copy of the "Pine Cone" nor of the "Wee Acorn" since leaving Carmel, although I have made many hopeful inquiries at the mail window of Thos. Cook and Son.

With kindest regards to all Carmel friends, I am,

Sincerely yours,

MINNA STEEL HARPER.

Another Artist Builds in Carmel

Celia B. Seymour has just completed a little cottage in the woods on Junipero street. A studio is to be added this summer. Miss Seymour, well known in New York for her many pastel and red chalk portraits, also an exhibitor with the San Francisco Society of Artists, makes her home with her uncle, Mr. Brace Hayden of Oakland.

Last winter she and Miss McKinstry had a studio in the Studio Building in San Francisco. Portraits of Otis Skinner, Congressman Julius Kahn, Brace Hayden and others were exhibited in the Gump Galleries last winter.

Teacher and Lecturer to Travel in Europe

The lure of foreign travel has descended upon Albert Leon Van Houtte, son of Mrs. Sarah Van Houtte of this city. He leaves on August 9 on the Laconia for Liverpool and thence to London where he will enjoy the British exposition. The itinerary will include Paris, Madrid, Bruges, Berlin, Amsterdam, Berne, Florence and Rome.

Van Houtte is especially interested in this trip because of the serial publication of his latest novel, "The Gringo or the Purple Bandanna," in the British newspapers. It will appear later in book form.

Mr. Van Houtte expresses his regret that he cannot be present during Serra Pilgrimage week on the Monterey Peninsula in October. He hopes for a good sale of his novel, "The Ball of Carmel," during that week.

Dear Editor: The following lines of Shelley I term:

"A VISION OF CARMEL"

"Come away
To the woods and to the fields
To the sandhills and the sea,
Where the earliest violets be.

We wandered to the pine forest
That skirts the ocean's foam,
The lightest wind was in its nest,
The tempest in its home.

The whispering waves were half asleep,
The clouds were gone to play,
And on the woods, and on the deep,
The smile of Heaven lay.

It seemed as if the day were one
Sent from beyond the skies,
Which shed to earth above the sun
A light of Paradise.

And all was interfused beneath
With an Elysian air,
An atmosphere without a breath,
A silence sleeping there."

A. S. MACDONALD.

When ducks were plentiful down on the lagoon south of the Carmel river, and meals could be had at the leading hotel at 50 cents!

Childhood Friend Coming Again

Preparations are well under way for the four performances of Kegg-Goldsmith Marionettes playing "Cinderella" at the Arts and Crafts Theatre, Friday and Saturday, August 1 and 2.

It is the intention of its producers to make every effort to present to this community, which is so interested in the art of the theatre, an idea of the possibilities of Marionettes as a medium of expression.

It is to be remembered that a long and glorious tradition is associated with Marionettes. The interest has almost become a vogue and has possibly led the casual observer to infer that puppets are of recent origin, and, still worse, a tendency to trivial subjects and careless presentation has seemed to rob them of their inherent interest and potential importance.

A little research in the increasing literature on the subject will reveal the fact that from their birth, centuries ago in Asia, and down through many golden epochs of history, Marionettes have delighted audiences from the most poignantly tragic situation in drama to the highly ludicrous and fantastic.

Already in this country a considerable number of noteworthy productions have met with widespread approval, and of course in Europe the fame of several brilliant master-artists of Marionettes has reached the very corners of the world. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that in these same far-removed spots from cultural centers, as in Java, for instance, may be found remarkable marionettes performances which, in their primitive purity of expression, have in their turn proved an almost inexhaustible fund of inspiration and suggestion to the art of all countries.

With this background in mind, the producers of "Cinderella" have striven at all times to maintain the standard and to play their part in popularizing the art of Marionettes. How far they have succeeded in this respect may possibly best be judged by seeing the performances. One can then decide whether the enthusiastic press reception bestowed upon them has been deserved.

Perhaps Writer's Horizon is Limited

A story is told of a fellow standing on the rim of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, peering 5000 feet down the chasm, when a man, thinking he was about to commit suicide, rushed up to restrain him.

"Hands off," he said. "I have all my life wanted to spit a mile, and no one is going to prevent me." This is about the way I felt after the play "Beyond the Horizon." It left such a bitter taste, I wanted to spit it out.

It had an odor about it of decaying ingredients of life—there was not a lofty thought, pleasant line or generous interpretation throughout. Why promulgate such festering sores of humanity?

Is the healthy-minded public desirous of a continual presentation of a cosmic hell? A bathroom is a necessary adjunct in a home, but that is no reason why it should be placed out on the front lawn.

Are morbid studies of decadent depression, crooked mental visions or portrayals of abnormal restlessness revelations for entertainment?

The plot is reminiscent of Wharton's "Ethan Frome" with a reversal of characters. The wheel chair episode has been outclassed in "The Bad Man" and the wailing infant but an echo of cheap melodrama. If this is considered the test of reproductive art and the highest function of the drama, no wonder the movies are a success.

But why such a play? What's the use?

My congratulations on the theater—the keynote of simplicity—taste displayed in harmonious coloring, indirect lighting with its ecclesiastical glow and excellent acoustic facilities add much to the materialistic comforts.

However, give us better fare. Why feed upon such tommyrot—why? As a woman remarked—"Thank goodness, it's over."

A. S. MACDONALD.

THE STORM WAVE

A whim of the sea, it rises,
A creature of ocean's dreaming;
A ripple, a ridge, a crester,
With tip that is curled and creaming;
Then the blue glints and the green
flares,
And the crest foams down and under,
And the wave dies to a long scar
In a roll of rumbled thunder!

Companion of storms and tempests
And child of the dread sou'wester;
The mate of the wild gale flying
Is this, the majestic crester;
As the back curls and the tip points,
And the white foams out and under;
And the spray flies, and the wind
screams,
And the storm-clouds burst asunder.

A moment from birth to dying—
A minute from start to ending;
But perfect in rule and power,
And mighty in force unbending;
Till the wind dies, and the storms cease,
And the foam sinks down and under;
And the waves go and the seas calm,
And the great storm ends in wonder.

Three Fine Affairs at the Golden Bough

Next week's delightful programs at the Theatre of the Golden Bough mark the height of its summer season's activity.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Maurice Brown, known in the theatre world under her maiden name, Van Volkenburg, will present her famous imitative interpretation of Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," as given by Maude Adams and full cast. This extraordinary performance has met with the most enthusiastic reception by metropolitan critics. Detailed reviews of Miss Van Volkenburg's work may be found in the files of almost all American and many European periodicals and in most recent books on the American stage.

On Thursday evening Constance Bruhl, formerly Constance Estcourt of the Royal Academy of Music of London, now residing in Pacific Grove, will present Spencer Yates, a phenomenal young local violinist, in professional debut. This is another noteworthy step in the development of the policy of the Golden Bough. The supporting artists on a splendid program are Constance Bruhl, pianist, and the excellent San Francisco baritone, John Edward Hillman. The entire peninsula is interested in this concert and a full attendance is anticipated.

The third event of the week occurs on Saturday evening, August 2, when Ellen Edwards will be heard in recital. This artist is a young English pianist of rare ability who has been a short time in America and has chosen to make California her home. Miss Edwards received her musical education in England and Germany. The past season she was soloist with the San Francisco Symphony, under the baton of Alfred Hertz. Her playing—authoritative, intuitive, and technically adequate has subtlety as well as strength, and her readings have that union of refinement and force that only a musical intelligence can impart.

Just a suggestion: Atlanta, Ga., is building a bachelor hall where no woman will be admitted. Instead of a watchdog they should get a watch mouse.—Exchange.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE
XLV.—OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA holds the record for rapid growth. It was in the first term of President

Benjamin Harrison that Oklahoma was opened up. Good farm land available under the Homestead Act was difficult to find so the United States bought from the Indians, who had been segregated in Indian territory, a large tract of some 40,000 square miles that had been used largely by the Indians as pasture for their cattle and horses. This was called Oklahoma, a word meaning "fine country," and was arranged to be ready for sale to homesteaders at 12 o'clock noon of April 22, 1889. Troops were placed on guard to prevent any settlers entering before that time for more than 100,000 "boomers" as they were called, came from all over the country to obtain farms or places for business. On the stroke of the hour, bugles sounded and the mad rush by men, women and children to locate claims began. The government had arranged land officers at many places at which claims could be filed for the farms or city lots, and all that day these were besieged by fighting mobs to register their selections. Before nightfall hundreds of farms were staked out and Oklahoma City and Guthrie were well on their way to become cities.

Thus was developed this region which came into the possession of the United States as a part of the Louisiana Purchase in 1803 and which was set aside for so many years as Indian country. Previous to the formation of Oklahoma territory, congress had forbidden white settlers in this part of the country, and this edict was enforced by federal troops. As the demand for more land was felt and as the Indians decreased in numbers, Indian territory was added to Oklahoma territory, and in 1907 it was admitted to the Union as the State of Oklahoma, adding another star to our flag, which for eleven years had contained forty-five. The state has flourished to such an extent that it has ten presidential electors, which is more than double that of many of the older states of larger size.

New Opera by Puccini

A copyright cable to the New York Times from London says word from Vienna reports that Puccini, whose "Madame Butterfly" is one of the most popular operas in the world, has finished his new opera "Turandot" and will see it performed next winter. It is based on a play by the Italian satirist, Gaspardo Gozzi. Turandot is a Chinese princess whose suitors are submitted to a trial analogous to that in the casket scene of "The Merchant of Venice."

Origin of the Harp

The harp began before the dawn of history. Wandering Phoenicians brought their harps to Ireland on some of their adventurous cruises.

The first of which there is record was brought there more than 1,000 years B. C. Many centuries later it was taken over to Wales by King Griffith, and was much used during the Middle Ages in Europe by wandering minstrels.

This medieval harp was a simple, diatonic instrument. It had no pedals and to change the pitch of a string the player had to press on it with the finger of one hand while playing it with a finger of the other hand.—Boston Transcript.

Shakespeare on Wheels

Shakespeare on wheels, moving to one's door for personal inspection, is the plan of F. R. Growcott, Shakespearean actor of London, who proposes to drive through the country districts in a caravan built to represent the room in which the great dramatist was born. Growcott will be dressed as Petrucio while the horse drawing the caravan will wear sixteenth century trappings and will be called Hamlet. Another caravan will represent Ann Hathaway's cottage, and Falcon inn, the old Globe theater and other structures with which Shakespeare was identified will be added to the list. It is expected that latent interest in Shakespeare will be aroused by the caravan in many English towns and villages.

Potboilers Are Ambitious

Sigurd Russell and his Potboiler Players returned to Los Angeles last week to resume their work for the fall productions. It was the first time they had attempted to take an art center by storm and was unpretentiously done. But in their own center they have attempted more daring feats and won.

The last play to be produced was "Uncle Vanya," by Tchekhov, wherein there was no action, but something infinitely greater—a play of mental processes. The papers thought they had gone mad to attempt it, but it was directed and produced under John W. Timen of New York, formerly with the Moscow Art Studio and a noted man internationally, who will be the principal director this winter, starting the season with "Six Characters in Search of an Author," a play of gripping oddities. It is a metaphysical discussion in stage terms and written by Pirandello, the great Italian, who takes the bare stage for his locale, and identity, the reality of experience, the relation of life to art makes the substance of his play. During the rehearsal of one of his plays by a provincial stock company, he admits through a stage door six characters whose drama has never been written. What they tell him of their lives forms the play. It becomes a remarkable mélange of wit, beauty and evil. This play may be given here by the Potboilers, or some other equally daring one. Not, however, because of the material profit to be derived. This work is done because of the love of beauty. It may be of interest to state that the two performances just given at Carmel netted the management and players just four dollars. Mr. Russell is probably the only manager of a company or group of players who had a balance in the treasury at the end of the first year—it was six dollars, and at the second an equally promising sum.

Real craft printing at the Pine Cone Press. Prices no higher than for ordinary work.

WHAT FREE HAS DONE

Congressman A. M. Free, of the Eighth Congressional District of California, when asked recently to state some things he has done since he has been in Congress, replied as follows:

"I have been particularly active in the interest of the farmers and fruit growers. One of my first activities was to secure a tariff on eggs, lemons, beans, mustard, almonds, walnuts, olives, prunes and quick-silver, which industries would otherwise have gone to the wall owing to the competition with the cheap labor of foreign countries. I was active in securing an extension of the War Finance Corporation, which has loaned nearly half a billion dollars to farming activities and saved sections, where the local banks could not meet the demands, from ruin.

"After the creation by the Government of the Federal Intermediate Banks, I made the argument before the Farm Loan Board and secured a ruling that canned and dried fruits and vegetables, beans, almonds, and walnuts are staple agricultural products and, as a result, $5,000,000 was advanced in California for the marketing of the products. I presented the facts and made the argument on behalf of California asking for a quarantine against the admission into the United States of fruit grown in countries afflicted by the Mediterranean fly. I was successful. Had I failed, it would have meant almost complete destruction of our fruits.

"I have been entrusted with the handling of very important questions on the floor of Congress, such as the control of Alaska fisheries, aid to our merchant marine, provisions of the Immigration Bill, etc. I was very active in securing the location of the Veterans' Hospital at Palo Alto, and securing a re-survey of lower San Francisco Bay. I have handled hundreds of cases of wounded soldiers before the Veterans' Bureau and have helped out many Civil War Veterans and their widows.

"I have endeavored to be attentive to my duties, studying the problems before me and voting as I think is for the best interests of the country, regardless of what may seem to be the popular thing."
